Pinning 100

Lack of sleep didn't seem to slow either King or Ingraham. Facing off against 3A and 4A competition in Cheyenne, Ingraham took third place in the 145 pound weight class, beating three returning State-placers in the process.

King beat two ranked opponents in the state capitol, ending up fifth in the 120 pound division. "It's not easy to go into overtime and double overtime matches, and (King) did all that and came out on the positive side," Schmidt noted.

Schmidt wasn't sparing with his praise for the junior varsity contenders, either. "I was really happy with the heart that was shown (over the weekend)," Schmidt said. "I felt like almost everybody grew from match #1 to match #7."

During this early phase of the year, Schmidt said he is concentrating on getting his athletes as much experience as he can. He is already doing a little scouting too, though. In Cheyenne, Schmidt said he kept an eye on Glenrock wrestlers. "They were a 3A powerhouse (last year) and I fully see them placing top two at State (this year)," he said.

The Panthers next competition is the Saratoga-hosted "Quadrangular" tournament 5:30 p.m. Dec. 15. Hanna Elk Mountain, the Rawlins junior varsity and North Park High wrestlers will all participate. Schmidt said he hopes to have two more grapplers ready to join King and Ingraham in varsity action by then. If all goes according to the coach's plans, all eight of his athletes will be varsity competitors by season's end.

So far, so good: "To go (to a 3A 4A tournament) as young as we are can be intimidating, and I didn't see a lot of intimidation (in Cheyenne)," Schmidt said.
